MONUMENT DEDICATED TO HEROES OF THE MAINE; 252 GUNS BOOM IN SALUTE

Many Thousands See Great Parade and Witness Impressive Ceremony at Circle.

WILSON SENDS WREATH.

Elloquent Speeches by Ex-President Taft, Gov. Sulzer, Secretary Daniels, Mayor Gaynor.

With appropriate ceremonies before an immense crowd, the monument built by the people of the United States in memory of the sailors who were lost in the destruction of the battleship Maine, fifteen years and three months ago, was today unveiled and presented to the City of New York. During the ceremony of unveiling the battleship in the Hudson River fired a salute of twenty-one guns—252 in all—a fitting accompaniment to the exercises commemorative of fighting men who died in the performance of their duty.

It is estimated that at least 50,000 persons saw the ceremonies at Columbus circle, where the monument is located, and the parade which preceded the unveiling. The parade moved up Fifth avenue from Forty-second street to Fifty-ninth street, across Fifty-ninth street to Broadway and up Broadway to sixty-sixth street, where the various divisions of soldiers, sailors and marines counter-marched by prescribed routes back to the monument. At 3 o'clock the parade moved up Fifth avenue from Forty-second street to Fifty-ninth street, across Fifty-ninth street to Broadway and up Broadway to sixty-sixth street, where the various divisions of soldiers, sailors and marines counter-marched by prescribed routes back to the monument.

CUBANS HAVE PLACE OF HONOR IN THE PARADE.

The parade was in four divisions. The sailors and marines from the Cuban cruiser Caba, 700 in number, had the place of honor directly behind the police escort. They were a snappy, active lot, well drilled and a great contrast to the rest of undisciplined men the Cubans sent to end against the armies of Spain.

The first division was made up of sailors and marines from the battleship Maine, 1,000 in number, followed by the second division, the State Militia, 1,000 in number, followed by the third division, the United States Army, 1,000 in number, followed by the fourth division, the United States Navy, 1,000 in number.

The ceremonies attending the unveiling and presentation were long and it was late in the afternoon before the procession closed. There was some delay caused by the difficulty of transferring the distinguished guests, including Gov. Sulzer, Mayor Gaynor, ex-President William H. Taft and many other distinguished army and navy officers from the reviewing stand on Fifty-ninth street to the stand at the monument.

The crowd was so dense that details of the ceremonies had to be shrouded in shadow and fight back surging walls of humanity.

Bishop Greer opened the ceremonies at the monument with prayer. Then Gen. James Grant Wilson, Chairman of the Maine Monument Committee, delivered the monument to the people of the City of New York, represented by Mayor Gaynor. Gen. Wilson also read a letter from President Woodrow Wilson.

HEART'S YOUNG SON PULLS LINE THAT UNVEILS MONUMENT

The actual unveiling was done by George Hearst, the young son of William Randolph Hearst, who pulled a line releasing the covering of the statue. There was great cheering as the folds of canvas slipped away revealing the monument in all its shimmer of bright bronze and expense of colored marble.

Father John P. Childwick, who was captain of the Maine when she was blown up in Havana Harbor, laid at the base of the monument a wreath sent by President Wilson. Marion Gaynor, the twelve-year-old daughter of the Mayor, presented a wreath given by the city. Admiral Sigsbee, the commander of the Maine at the time she was destroyed, laid on the monument a wreath contributed by the survivors of the disaster. Cuba's wreath was presented by Consul-General Rockefeller.

Mayor Gaynor accepted the monument in behalf of the city and addressed words also delivered by ex-President Taft, Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy; Gov. Sulzer, Admiral Sigsbee, Chairman of the Spanish War Veterans, and Maurice Simmons, Past Commander of that organization.

DIVORCE GRANTED MRS. BISHOP WITH ALIMONY UNFIXED

Lawyers Directed to Agree on Income of Millionaire's Former Wife by Monday.

HE MAKES NO DEFENSE.

End of Trial Comes as Result of Conference Among Attorneys and Judge.

Prosecutor Gives Governor His Opinion of Police Situation; Silent on Curran Report.

Mrs. Abigail Harlock Bishop, whose suit for divorce against James Cunningham Bishop, millionaire society man and banker, has attracted crowds to Supreme Court Justice Goff's court in the last week, has won her case. At 1 o'clock this afternoon, after conference between the lawyers and the Justice, which lasted all day, Mrs. Bishop's lawyers, ex-District Attorney William Travers Jerome and James W. Osborne, announced that the plaintiff rested, and Henry W. Taft, brother of the ex-President, said Mr. Bishop had no defense to offer. It had been agreed in the conference that such should be the procedure. Justice Goff immediately announced: "There is no question at all but what the defendant committed adultery with Mrs. Gwathmey in the Hotel Astor and judgment for the plaintiff is rendered accordingly."

COUNSEL WILL TRY TO AGREE ON ALIMONY.

Mr. Jerome said he thought an agreement could be reached and Mr. Taft agreed there was a reasonably good prospect. Justice Goff then announced he would give the lawyers until 10 o'clock Monday morning to come to an agreement. Then they are to report to him and to incorporate their agreement in the final papers, which Justice Goff will sign if an amicable settlement has been reached. If by Monday they shall not have agreed, Justice Goff said he would appoint a referee to settle the matter or would take it under advisement himself.

Mrs. Bishop was surrounded by society women, who shook her warmly by the hand and congratulated her on the outcome of the suit. Mr. Bishop received no such attentions and left the courtroom in the company of his lawyer, Mrs. Bishop's departure was in the nature of a triumphant exit and crowds followed her to Chambers street, where she got into her limousine and was driven away.

The end of the suit came suddenly but not entirely unexpected. The overtures came from Mr. Taft and George Gordon Battle, counsel for Mrs. J. Temple Gwathmey, of luncheons and dinners and midnight repasts, and of breakfasts in pajamas and nightgowns.

The witnesses identified Bishop with out hesitations, and with equal positiveness they identified as that of the woman they had seen a portrait of Mrs. Gwathmey which William Travers Jerome presented to them.

The permanent custody of the five Bishop children is a difficulty which the lawyers are not entirely confident of bridging. Mr. Bishop is anxious to retain the custody of his four eldest daughters, Mary, aged twenty; Augusta, aged nineteen; Natalie, aged fifteen; and Muriel, aged eleven years. The youngest, Abigail, aged seven years, was given into the custody of Mrs. Bishop by Justice Hendrick. Mrs. Bishop now demands that she have charge of her three youngest daughters, Natalie, Muriel and Abigail. The decision of the defending lawyers, no longer to contest the case, resulted from the avalanche of damaging testimony which yesterday's session brought forth.

With a wealth of detail, chambermaids and waiters employed at the Hotel Astor told of visits there of Bishop and Mrs. Gwathmey, of luncheons and dinners and midnight repasts, and of breakfasts in pajamas and nightgowns.

DUCHESS OF ORLEANS AT ODDS WITH HUSBAND TO ASK A SEPARATION

Wife of French Pretender Wants Alimony and Restitution of Money Given Him.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 30.—The Duchess of Orleans, it is announced here, intends to-morrow to start a suit for separation, alimony and the restitution of large sums which, it is affirmed, she has advanced against her husband, Prince Louis Philippe, Duke of Orleans, the French pretender.

The Duchess of Orleans before her marriage was Archduchess Marie Dorothea of Austria. She was married to the Duke in 1898.

POLICEMAN SAVES DRIVER BY STOPPING RUNAWAYS.

Sergt. O'Grady Is Dragged Back With Man Clinging to Wagon Tongue.

Sergt. O'Grady of the Tremont street station, who has won several police medals for life saving, qualified for another this afternoon when he stopped a runaway team that was plunging down Wendover avenue, the Bronx, with the driver clinging to a perilous position on the tongue of the wagon between the galloping horses.

The two big horses, attached to a dirt wagon and driven by Aneto Robinet of No. 323 First avenue, took fright at an automobile at Webster avenue and One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street and raced up the avenue past Claremont Park. Near Wendover avenue the runaways swung the wagon against a passing southbound Webster avenue car.

In swerving, the driver was thrown from his seat and, landing on the wagon tongue, was clinging there for life, less than two feet from the menacing hoofs of the team.

O'Grady managed to get a grip on one animal's bridle and was dragged for nearly a block before the runaways were stopped by him to the curb. When an ambulance came from Fordham Hospital the surgeon found O'Grady had a dislocated left arm and the driver a fractured left knee. Both went to the hospital.

SPANISH CABINET RESIGNS.

Ministers Assumed Office After Assassination of Canalejas.

MADRID, May 30.—The Spanish Premier, Count Alvaro de Romanones, and the other members of the Cabinet resigned office to-day. Count Romanones had been Premier since Nov. 14, 1912, when he took office after the assassination of former Premier Jose Canalejas.

ROSALIE JONES UP 1,000 FEET IN FLIGHT FOR VOTES

Undaunted by the Stiff Wind, She Makes the Ascent With Aviator Brown.

"General" Rosalie Jones, the suffragette strategist and champion flier, risked her life for "the Cause" down at the Oakwood Heights, Staten Island, and came near being a martyr to equal suffrage.

The "General's" sensational volplane for votes had been announced as one of the star features of the Aeronautical Society's opening day of the meet at the Staten Island grounds, but when the wise birdmen took a glance at the weather to-day and saw the woolly clouds being whirled across the sky on the back of a puff wind they advised the little suffragette hiker that her usefulness for votes might be better served on the ground.

"General" Rosalie was game, and she insisted that a woman who dared to fight for the vote would dare to chase the swallows. So before the eyes of more than 10,000 persons, Harry Ringham Brown rose from the field in his biplane and went off to Grant City to pick up Rosalie.

Brown brought his machine down in a broad field at Grant City only after the most delicate warring against the gusty gusts of wind. He shook his head doubtfully when the game vote-for-woman leader, her skirts bound about her ankles and her hair tied down under a heavy veil, insisted upon climbing into the seat beside him. Men gave the propellers a twist and the biplane trundled off across the grass, rose and circled for the start back to Oakwood field.

To avoid the ground currents Brown lifted his mechanical bird 100 feet in the air and out at a sharp tack against the wind. When he arrived over the aviation field he had to circle time and again and do some very dextrous warping to keep his machine from flipping over and tumbling to earth. When the aeroplane landed the grandstand rose to the daring oerans of the bike to Washington and yellow flags in the hands of her sympathizers sprouted everywhere.

The "General" made a little speech before everybody, thanking them for their applause.

Another thrill came soon after when Cecil Peoli, the seventeen-year-old boy aviator who was the pupil of Capt. Baldwin, went up in the Captain's "Red Devil." As he was descending from his initial flight a puff of wind nearly turned him over and there was a gasp from the thousands below. In order to right himself he had to make a quick drop into a marsh outside the grounds.

Men pried his machine out of the mud and up he went to the cheers of the grandstand. This time he shut off his engine at the 2,000-foot level and volplaned to earth in a sensational dive.

WOMEN ARE CRUSHED AS CROWD OF 20,000 FIGHT TO SEE RACES

Great Throng Wedged for Hours at Entrance to Belmont Park Owning to Lack of Sufficient Ticket Booths.

SHERIFF AND GUARDS ALERT, BUT FAIL TO SEE BETTING

Crowd Joins in Singing "Auld Lang Syne" When Horses Go to Post for First Race.

By Robert Edgren.

BELMONT PARK, May 30.—There was a near-riot in the jam at the opening of the racing game here this afternoon. Thousands were crushed at the entrance. Men and women came through the press breathless and with their clothing torn. There were 20,000 inside the gates when the first race was run, but they were only a fraction of the crowd. Outside automobiles were stalled in a line that stretched two miles from the gate.

Thousands deserted their machines and walked in toward the gates. They found their way blocked by a great, struggling crowd massed solidly against the resisting iron fences and walls of the park. Further progress was impossible. The ticket sellers and gatemen were helpless under the pressure from the front.

FAVORITE IS BEATEN IN THE FIRST RACE AT BELMONT PARK.

FIRST RACE—Selling; for three-year-olds and upward; 500 added; six furlongs; main course.—Ella Bryson, 100 (Hanover), first, 4 to 1, 3 to 1, and even; Lysander, 105 (Woff), second, 4 to 1, 3 to 1, and 4 to 1; Perthshire, 114 (Trotter), third, 8 to 1, 1 to 1 and out.

Time, 1:13.4. Odds, 10 to 1, 5 to 1, 3 to 1, 2 to 1, 1 to 1, and out. In the first race Ella Bryson was entered to be sold for $500. She was bid up to $1,000, at which price her owner, R. F. Curran, retained her. Ella Bryson, ridden by Hanover, won the first race of the year in a stirring finish from Lysander, with Perthshire third. In what little oral betting that was done on the race Perthshire was the favorite.

SECOND RACE—For two-year-olds; 500 added; five furlongs.—Punch Bowl, 104 (Butwell), even, 1 to 2 and out, first; Surprising, 104 (Hanover), 2 to 1, 1 to 1, and 1 to 1; second; Gert, 116 (Glenn), 5 to 1, even and 1 to 1, third. Time, 0:58.3. Unfurl, Cliff Maid, Arrington, Transformation, Northern, Apt to Be, Transparency, Piping Hot, Election Bet, Andra, Pan American, Golden Prime and Sarnell also ran.

Overhead hung the sun in a cloudless sky, adding its heat to the general discomfort. Yet nobody turned back; the crowd was determined to get in. Inside the stands everything was orderly. The stands were filled at three race time. Paddock and lawn were well covered with patrons of the sport. Those who oppose racing and think its patrons "thugs and blacklegs" might look over the stands to-day with profit. Racing never drew out a better dressed, cleaner, more representative American gathering in all the history of the sport. As for betting, it was not only the most microscopic, but a note or a notebook was seen. The pit time racing men, if they made any bets at all, did so with extreme caution and only among themselves.

MRS. PANKHURST RELEASED FROM HOLLOWAY JAIL.

Suffragist Leader So Weakened by Hunger Strike She Was Unable to Walk.

LONDON, May 30.—Mrs. Pankhurst was released to-night from prison under the provisions of the "cat and mouse" law, and will be permitted to recover her health before being rearrested. She was so weak that she could not walk out of the Holloway Jail, and had to be carried to the ambulance her friends had in waiting.

She had refused to eat from the time she was taken back to prison last Monday.

German Cruiser Aground.

KIEL, Germany, May 30.—The German armored cruiser Blücher went aground to-day during a fog to the north of the island of Rømø, in the Great Belt, between the Baltic Sea and the Cattegat. She is lying on a sandy bottom and the commander believes that there is no danger.

The threatened interference of the capable National Guard was not in evidence. Perhaps the N. G. was stalled in court beyond the gates. (Continued on Second Page.)
